

Clear Communication Saves Lives

Communication is key in any work zone. Linemen should maintain clear, consistent communication with flaggers, equipment operators, and fellow crew members. Use hand signals, radios, or other agreed-upon methods to coordinate movements and respond quickly to hazards. Miscommunication can lead to dangerous situations, especially when working near energized lines or moving vehicles, so always confirm instructions and stay connected.